LAW SOCIETY COMPULSORY RISK MANAGEMENT 2017 EVENT – full details including dates and venues will follow.

The Law Society Compulsory Risk Management 2017 event presents members with a valuable opportunity to consider risk, and how to manage and ameliorate risk within your practice. The Council’s commitment to robust, increased risk management has already seen a reduction in the annual insurance premium renewal for 2016-2017. The quid pro quo of a reduced premium is members are required to demonstrate their own robust, increased risk management, as part of their collective endeavour to reduce the adverse claims experience, which will in turn form part of our narrative to the underwriters in our renewal negotiations for 2017-2018.

As part of the Council’s commitment to sound and robust risk management both across and within the profession, and our vision of improvement, this event is designed to assist members with their own risk based approach to risk management.

You should note that the Society will take into account your CPD compliance when exercising its regulatory function.

BEST PRACTICE MANAGEMENT SERIES 2017

Cost: Various - See below

CPD Hours: Various - See below

The Best Practice Management Series 2017 presents members with a valuable opportunity to consider best practice management for you and your firm.

This is a significant year for all practitioners with not only the transposition of the 4th Money Laundering Directive (4MLD) into national law scheduled to take effect in June 2017, but also the review of the United Kingdom’s AML (Anti-Money Laundering)/CTF (Counter Terrorist Finance) regime by the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) in 2017-2018. 4MLD imposes greater statutory obligations on members in respect of the AML/CTF regulatory regime. The Society as a statutory supervisor of solicitors both under the Solicitors (Northern Ireland) Order 1976 as amended and for AML/CTF purposes, will be required to conduct more in-depth monitoring of members’ CPD records, not only for AML/CTF purposes but also for general regulatory compliance.

As part of our commitment to sound and robust best practice management both across and within the profession, and our vision of improvement, this series has been designed to assist members with best practice management while providing an update on 4MLD and the FATF review.

You should note that the Society will take into account your CPD compliance when exercising its regulatory function.

COMPETENCY BASED SELECTION AND INTERVIEWING SKILLS: AN OVERVIEW

Date: Wednesday 22 February 2017

Time: 1pm – 3pm

Venue: Law Society House, Belfast

Cost: £70

CPD Hours: 2 General Group Study

Competency based assessment is the primary method of selection used by the statutory agencies in the Criminal Justice system in Northern Ireland, as well as across the wider public sector in general. Taking a competency-based approach to selection means assessing an individual's specific skills, competencies, attitudes and behaviours as they pertain to a particular job. The competency-based interview in particular, is often approached with trepidation by candidates because the format is very different to less structured interviews and requires a specific approach in order to succeed. As with any technique, understanding and practice enhances skills.

This practical seminar is designed to increase knowledge and understanding of the competency-based approach to selection as well as providing practical tips and guidance on how to complete an application form and structure your interview responses using a competency based approach.

Fiona Keenan, Director of Keenan HR Consulting Limited, will deliver the session. Fiona has over 17 years professional experience in the fields of recruitment, selection and interview coaching. She has previously held Senior Management positions for Marks and Spencer plc, Vision Information Consulting and was a senior manager for the HR Consultancy Team at Deloitte Consulting. Fiona has also served as an Independent Assessor for the Office of Public Appointments, a Judicial Appointments Commissioner for the Northern Ireland Judicial Appointments Commission, a Non Executive Director for the Department of Education and as an internal verifier for the Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development.

Cyber attacks directed at law firms are increasing. Hackers want their clients' confidential information. From data breaches to phone hacking and communications interception, law firms have become a prime target for Cybersecurity hackers.

There is a rising threat in mobile communications intercept. The availability, affordability and portability of IMSI catchers - technology for the easy capture of mobile communications - should have law firms turning to encryption solutions to protect their practices and their clients.

Lack of control of communications can put a law firm at a disadvantage. Without control, "dark" networks can be created that the law firm is completely unaware of. Confidential information can be shared beyond the circle of trust without the firm's knowledge or consent. Law firms cannot depend on hearsay to corroborate compliance and accountability, they must ensure it themselves.

Learn about how communications are hacked and how to take action to protect your clients, your practice and your reputation. This seminar has been designed to be of relevance and benefit to all firms regardless of size and structure.

To increase accessibility the seminar will take place in the following locations:

Tuesday 7 March 2017	1pm – 2pm	Killyhevlin Hotel, Enniskillen
Tuesday 14 March 2017	1pm – 2pm	Roe Park Resort, Limavady

Session 1

Wednesday 12 April 2017 1pm – 2pm

Accounting and Reporting for Charities

The Charities (Accounts and Reports) Regulations, which commenced on 1 January 2016, mean that all registered charities must report annually to the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland on their activities, governance and resources.

Compulsory annual reporting by registered charities has been introduced into Northern Ireland on a phased basis, following the commencement of charity registration in December 2013. In 2017, this means that many charities will have had their first taste of reporting to a regulator and of having their accounts published.

Myles McKeown, Head of Compliance and Enquiries at the Charity Commission will present an overview of the regulations and what lessons have been learned so far.

Session 2

Wednesday 1 November 2017 10am – 11am

Charity Law Update

Regulation specifically relating to charities is still in relative infancy in Northern Ireland. With regulations continuing to stem from the Charities Act (Northern Ireland) 2008 and greater obligations being placed upon charities, this session will discuss the main developments in 2017, what charities can expect in 2018, highlight decisions of the Charity Tribunal and the High Court and cover lessons for the sector from the latest casework and investigatory work of the Commission.

Session 1

Thursday 13 April 2017

Intellectual Property – An Overview

It is hard to think of any business today which does not involve a software system of one kind or another. As clients become more and more tech dependent, they are looking to commercial lawyers to provide advice on IT contracts.

This IT Law session will:

- look at the IT world from a practical point of view;
- discuss the best steps to take to bridge the gap between lawyer and “techie” so that the client’s needs can be properly understood;
- provide an update on the market position for terms in different types of IT contract;
- provide an introduction to the mysteries of open source software licensing and the copyleft theory.

This session is aimed at commercial lawyers generally, rather than IT specialists. Attendees will leave with an understanding of how to advise on the different types of IT transaction, where to find up to date best practice advice and how the continuous development of tech provides lawyers with many different opportunities for growth.

Session 2

Friday 1 December 2017

Intellectual Property – An Update

In today's corporate environment clients increasingly need to be advised as to how they protect their IP, while at the same time exposing it to the marketplace for monetisation.

This session will:

- explain how to identify a client’s IP assets, and how to advise the client on the required protection steps;
- identify practical steps to help clients monetise their IP products, while continuing to protect their IP;
- look at a number of current Northern Ireland IP developments to track how best to look after and advise clients.

Following on from April’s “Intellectual Property – An Overview”, this session will focus on IP law in practice, rather than theory. The session will offer updates on IP developments and cases, linking these to trends in legal development and practical ways in which to advise clients. The aim of the session is to inform, but also to encourage discussion and debate over current IP issues. The session will heighten awareness amongst lawyers of the increasing prevalence of IP and IT rights and suggest practical ways of approaching these matters.

In order to have a legal profession that is fit for the demands of delivering legal services in the 21st century we need to make sure that those providing the services are productive, resilient and able to cope with a changing and competitive environment.

Increasingly organisations are developing wellbeing policies. There are many benefits to this – greater self-esteem, optimism, resilience, vitality, positive relationships with colleagues, better physical and mental health, greater motivation, creativity and more productive work. From an employer's perspective actively improving wellbeing may help to attract a talented and diverse range of people, help with staff retention, reduce sick days, increase productivity and give an edge over competitors. It makes business sense to take wellbeing seriously.

This seminar will help identify aspects of practice that compromise wellbeing and identify ways of improving wellbeing including:
