

Following on from last year the Society is working to develop closer relationships with solicitors right across Northern Ireland. The Society recognises the need for debate with members and acknowledges the ever changing context of legal practice.

This year the Society is holding a “Law Society of Northern Ireland Question Time” in four key locations and it is hoped that as many of our members as possible will be in attendance at what we hope will be an interactive event.

The final Question Time event will take place in Derry/Londonderry and will take the format of an informal round table question and answer session with the President, Suzanne Rice and the new Chief Executive, David Lavery.

Question Time will present solicitors with an opportunity to raise any queries/issues members may have. Where possible we would be grateful if solicitors could register their interest to attend in advance of the event, so the appropriate catering provisions can be made at each of the venues.
