

Mediation Services

The rooms at Law Society House are ideal for mediations.

With the Courts increasingly expecting parties to take steps to resolve disputes many practitioners are using mediation as a means of meeting their clients' interests and satisfying the court requirements.

A mediation requires comfortable rooms, areas for "break out", refreshments and a neutral yet formal space. Law Society House has hosted many mediations and being centrally located next to the Law Courts it provides a sense of "doing business" in a calm, organised and conducive setting.

The facilities can cope with mediations involving just a small number of participants as well as multi party cases and those where many people need to attend.

With attractive room rates and flexible room set up and configurations members should consider Law Society House as your venue of choice for mediation.
